DETAILED ACTION

Election/Restrictions

Restriction to one of the following inventions is required under 35 U.S.C. 121:

Group I, claim(s) 1-15; drawn to whippable food product, classified in class 426, subclass 601

Group II, claim(s) 16-22; drawn to method of making an emulsion, i.e., a method of making a triglyceride based whippable, classified in class 426, subclass 601.

Group III, claim(s) 23-27; drawn to a whipped product, i.e., the whipped confection with a butter like taste, classified in class 426, subclass 564.

Inventions of Group II and Group I are related as process of making and product made. The inventions are distinct if either or both of the following can be shown: (1) that the process as claimed can be used to make other and materially different product or (2) that the product as claimed can be made by another and materially different process (MPEP § 806.05(f)). In the instant case the whippable food product as recited in Group I (claims 1-15) can be cream, milk, butter, egg or oil based whippable liquid product, which can be made by a processes other than the one as recited in Group II (claims 16-22), e.g., cream or egg based whippable food product (the product of Group I) can be obtained without the heating step as instantly claimed in Group II.

Inventions of group I and III are related as mutually exclusive species in an intermediate-final product relationship. Distinctness is proven for claims in this relationship if the intermediate product is useful to make other than the final product, and the species are patentably distinct (MPEP § 806.05(j)). In the instant case, the intermediate product is deemed to be useful by itself for making products other than the whipped confection as recited in Group III (claims 23-27). The composition as recited in Group I (claims 1-15) can be used as a base to make various food products other than the whipped non-dairy confection as recited in Group III (claims 23-27), e.g., cooked egg based products as quiche, specialty omelets etc; milk based products, such as, ice creams; and other products like soufflé, meringue, cakes etc., and does not yield only a whipped non-dairy product as recited in Group III (claims 23-27). Thus the inventions are patentably distinct because they are not obvious variants of each other.

The inventions of Groups II and III are related as process of making the intermediate product and the final product made. The inventions are distinct if either or both of the following can be shown: (1) that the process as claimed can be used to make other and materially different product or (2) that the product as claimed can be made by another and materially different process (MPEP § 806.05(f)). In the instant case the whipped confection as recited in Group III (claims 23-27) can be egg or oil based product, where the emulsion does not need to be heated to form the intermediate product, as recited in Group II (claims 16-22).

Because these inventions are independent or distinct for the reasons given above and there would be a serious burden on the examiner if restriction is not required because the inventions require a different field of search and/ or the inventions have acquired a separate status in the art in view of their different classification, restriction for examination purposes as indicated is proper.

Applicant is advised that the reply to this requirement to be complete must include an election of the invention to be examined even though the requirement be traversed (37 CFR 1.143).
